ACTION: _____ DATE OF MEETING: February 2, 2000

INFORMATION: X PRESENTER(S): Mr. Tong

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

One of the 1999/2000 objectives approved for the Investment Branch was to examine the progress achieved in implementing the internal equity management plan adopted at the May 5, 1999, Investment Committee meeting. The Board approved an expansion of the internal passive domestic equity program. Specifically, the Board adopted an increase in the allocation to internal management from approximately 4% to 50% of the total S&P 500 passive mandate. The increase was funded by a series of transfers from the external passive manager. On December 1, 1999, staff completed expanding the internal program.

As of December 31, 1999, CalSTRS had internal responsibility for domestic equity investments totaling $14.8 billion. These assets represented 13.4% of CalSTRS' total investment portfolio. The Board established a target proportion for passive investment strategies of 80% for total domestic portfolio assets.

A report that reviews the expansion of the internal passive domestic equity program and the ability of the passive equity manager to match the investment returns of the S&P 500 Index is included as Attachment 1.

Internal S&P 500 Indexed Portfolio

Background

This report reviews the use of internal passive equity management at California State Teachers' Retirement System (CalSTRS). The overall objective of this report is to provide the Investment Committee with information in determining the progress of the internal passive management program. Specifically, the report reviews the expansion of the internal passive domestic equity program and the ability of the passive equity manager to match the investment returns of the S&P 500 Index.

The objective for the internal S&P 500 indexed portfolio (Portfolio) is to closely match the performance of the S&P 500 Index. The S&P 500 Index is composed of 500 large companies. Since some industries are characterized by companies of relatively small stock capitalization, the S&P 500 Index does not comprise the 500 largest companies in the domestic equity market. A list of the S&P 500 constituents and their respective weighting in the index are included as Exhibit A.

The S&P 500 Index is a market value weighted index (shares outstanding multiplied by stock price) of 500 stocks. The weighting system allows each company to influence the S&P 500 Index's performance directly proportional to the relative market value.

The Standard and Poor's S&P 500 Index Committee (Committee) is responsible for all decisions affecting the S&P 500 Index. The Committee determines the overall policy and objective of the S&P 500 Index and establishes guidelines and criteria for adding and deleting each company in the S&P 500 Index. The Committee usually meets on a regular basis to approve stocks for inclusion. Once approved by the Committee by unanimous vote, these stocks are then placed into the Replacement Pool. When index changes occurs, the Committee decides which stock out of the Replacement Pool will be selected for inclusion in the S&P 500 Index. Each stock added to the S&P 500 Index is evaluated on a number of factors, including financial condition, industry leadership role, and liquidity.

Strategy for Managing Internal S&P 500 Indexed Portfolio

The Portfolio is constructed to match the risk and performance of common stocks of U.S. companies as represented by the S&P 500 Index. In accordance with CalSTRS' policies, the Portfolio applies an index replication investment strategy by holding all of the stocks in the index close to index weight. The full replication method minimizes expected tracking error.

The tracking error is attributable primarily to three factors: (i) cash drag from dividend accruals<sup>1</sup>, (ii) frictional cash associated with the increased fundings, and (iii) security misweights. Of these three factors, the primary cause of performance tracking error has been cash drag from dividend accruals. Cash drag arises because Standard & Poor's assumes that dividend reinvestment occurs on ex-date for performance calculation. Typically, the Portfolio does not actually receive payment of dividends on the ex-dividend date. The actual receipt of dividends could be two to six weeks after the ex-dividend date. Therefore, the Portfolio will not be able to buy S&P stocks during the lag time for the yet-to-be received dividend amounts. To reduce tracking error, dividends on the constituent stocks are collected and reinvested promptly. The Portfolio trades stocks when the index constituents change and when dividends are reinvested.

Increase Size of Internal S&P 500 Indexed Portfolio

As mentioned earlier, the CalSTRS' Board approved increasing the size of the internal program to 50% of the value of the S&P 500 mandate with a range of 45% to 55%. The Board expanded the percentage of S&P 500 Index assets managed internally based on presentations from staff and Pension Consulting Alliance. It was established that staff could manage a larger portfolio in a cost-effective manner while producing risk and return that closely match the performance benchmark. The funding consisted of a series of asset transfers from the external passive manager. Each transfer was completed over time in order for staff to manage and monitor the growth of the Portfolio. Table 1 shows the growth of the internal program. In accordance with the internal equity management plan approved by the Investment Committee, the increase in allocation to internal management rose significantly from May 31, 1999 to December 1, 1999.

Table 1: Internal S&P 500 Assets

There are benefits to be gained by managing a larger indexed Portfolio. Due to the increase in size, the performance of the Portfolio has been enhanced in such a manner as to minimize deviation between the performance of the Portfolio and the benchmark. Primarily, a larger fund is able to invest its cash flows more efficiently through the purchase of larger baskets and more securities with cash flows that actually help control tracking error.

The Portfolio's holdings are maintained extremely close to index weight. The minor misweights create a small tracking error. A larger portfolio has helped address this misweight issue.

Performance Measurement

The performance objective of the internal Portfolio is to closely track the return of the S&P 500 Index. Table 2 disaggregates the relative performance of the Portfolio into three performance periods (before increase, during increase, since inception). After increasing the size of the internal program, the Portfolio's performance continued to closely track the S&P 500 Index. For the 12 month period ending December 31, 1999, the Portfolio outperformed the S&P 500 Index by +0.124% (12.4 basis points). Since inception, the Portfolio is ahead its benchmark by +0.039%.

Table 2: S&P 500 Performance

Total Returns	Portfolio	Index	Tracking Error
Before Increase: 3/98 – 12/98 1/99 – 5/99	+12.892% +6.442%	+12.975% +6.420%	-0.084% +0.022%
During Increase: 6/99 – 12/99	+13.781%	+13.688%	+0.093%
Cumulative: 3/98-12/99	+36.725%	+36.686%	+0.039%

Portfolio return calculated by State Street Bank Analytics.

The total return for the index was calculated by Wilshire Associates.

Since inception, the average monthly performance variance (Portfolio versus Index) was +/- 0.020% (2 basis points). The average variance increased to +/-0.046% during the period when Portfolio funding occurred (6/99-12/99). However, the overall variance has been positive during the funding period, resulting in a positive tracking error for 1999.

Conclusion

In summary, the internal equity program produced results that met expectations. The fundings have actually helped performance on a net basis. Primarily, additional assets help the Portfolio to hold more precise security weights, actually lowering tracking error. The larger size Portfolio adds more flexibility to the management of the Portfolio. Additionally, a larger Portfolio allows staff to invest cash flows more efficiently.

According to adopted policy, the Portfolio could have a tracking error of +/-0.120% (12 basis points) on an annualized basis. For the 12 month period ending December 31, 1999, the Portfolio generated positive tracking error at the upper limit of 0.12%.
